BE KIND.

As stars upon the tranquil sea
In mimic glory shine,
So words of kindness in the heart
Reflect the source divine;
Oh then be kind, whe'er thou art,
That breathest mortal breath,
And it shall brighten all thy life,
And sweeten even death.

THY WILL BE DONE.

Our troubles fade, but leave their trace;
And years of toil and care,
With lines of sorrow mar the face,
That once was fair,

Oh! would that we could feel and know
That grief is sent in Love,
To wean our hearts from earth below,
To God above.

Oh! would that we could understand,
Then calm would follow strife.
Oh! would our eyes could see the Hand,
That guides our life,

For then our feet would chose the way,
That now we strive to shun;
And full of praise, our hearts would pray,
"Thy will be done."

WINTER.

The sun in dreary splendor,
Is lingering in the West;
A gloomy weight of ice and snow
Is on the water's breast.

The daisies and the butter cups
Are in their frozen bed,
All cheerless in the meadow,
With sheets of white o'erspread.

Long lines of loaf-like snow-banks,
Long lines of leafless trees
Stretch out along the roadside,
Where all things seem to freeze.

The woodman's axe clear ringing;
The crackling of the frost;
The cold air keenly stinging;
The leaves with pearls embossed,

Remind us that a tyrant
Has gained a regal throne;
His touch, like death, is chilling;
His heart is like a stone.

Yet 'round the fireside gathered,
Our homelike joys complete;
We heed not wintry hours,
Or count them all too fleet.

A Generation of Vipers.

The other day, while the Rev. Mr. Mulkittle was traveling on a railroad just completed through a hitherto "unopened-to-the-world" section of Arkansas, a man wearing high top boots and a long "galler" jeans coat, sat down by him and attempted to engage the good man in conversation. There is a great deal of the Englishman in Mr. Mulkittle's character. He would travel all day and never throw off the cloak of severe reserve if allowed to do so, and when the roughly dressed man sat down by him he moved uneasily in his seat, The man noted this sign with something of encouragement, and when he smiled the curved lines on his cheeks made his mouth look as though it were set in parenthesis.

"How far are you goin'?" asked the man.

Again Mr. Mulkittle moved uneasily and pretended to devote himself to a newspaper.

"I ask, cap'n, how fur air you goin'?"

"I know what you ask, sir. I am not feeling very well to-day, and with your kind permission I prefer to be left alone."

"I reckin so. Whar did you git on?"

"None of your business."

"Pears to me like it is my business," and placed a rude hand on Mr. Mulkittle's shoulder, he said, "You air my prisoner."

"Don't cut no scallops with me, cap'n. You think I don't know you, but you air mistaken. I've been layin' for you for some time."

"What have I done?" demanded Mr. Mulkittle, attempting to rise.

"Set down sir. You know what you've done. If you've forgot, why the folks at Hickory Flat will remind you."

"I was never in Hickory Flat in my life, sir."

"I expected you to kick, cap'n. You didn't come thar last month an' beat Col. Mainly outen a watch eh?"

"Never saw Col. Mainly in my life. Make these people sit down. I don't want a crowd around me."

"Didn't beat old man 'Lias Gregg outen two weeks' board, oh no. Oh, I know you, Nick Payton. Here's a man who lives in the Flat. Here, Mr. Morgan, who is this feller?"

Mr. Morgan, after a moment's scrutiny, replied; "That's him," and after rubbing his spectacles, added: "I swar ter it. He wanted ter git board at my house, but I turned him away, 'cause why? His clothes were too sleek. I like a straight-for'ard man, but when a feller comes aroun' with a 'spicious eye and sleek duds I let him slide."

"Gentlemen," said Mr. Mulkittle, becoming aroused to a true sense of his unenviable position, "I am sorry that you so misjudge me. I have no doubt but that some rascal has imposed upon you, and I assure you that no one sooner than I would assist you in bringing him to justice, but I am innocent. I am a minister of the gospel, and live in Little Rock. If you will stop at the station and let me send a telegram to the Governer of the State, he will identify me as the Rev. Mulkittle, pastor of St. Simon church."

"The next station is Hickory Flat," replied the officer, "an we will tillygraf from thar. Ef your name is what you say it is, you may go."

The train soon reached the station, and the minister, followed by a crowd, sought the telegraph office.

"How will this do?" said Mr. Mulkittle. "Have arrested a man for one Nick Payton. Says that his name is the Rev. Mulkittle. Do you know him? Now," continued the minister, "Sign your name to this and send it."

The officer thoroughly satisfied with the arrangement, affixed his signature and handed the message to the operator. A few moments afterwards the dispatch was received in Little Rock as follows:

"Have arrested a man for Nick Peyton. Says that his name is Robert Mulkmiller. Do you know him?"

Mr. Mulkittle waited impatiently but confidently. After awhile the operator announced that the dispatch was at hand, and he wrote the following:

"Don't know the man, but think he is wanted here. Hold him until officers from here arrive."

Mr. Mulkittle groaned, and sank upon a bench. The crowd gathered around and commented on his appearance.

"Bad lookin' man," said old Driver, the blacksmith. 'Dangerous eye an' a mighty bad mouth."

"Wouldn't trust him ten steps," said old Morgan, "Whar's old Gregg an' his darter? They can indentify him."

A messenger was sent for Gregg and the young lady who had been so shamefully treated. When the girl saw Mr. Mulkittle, she screamed and threw her arms around him.

"Oh Nick don't try to disguise yourself. Oh, why did you run away from me? Promise that you will marry me now."

"Look out, Miss; look out," gasped Mr. Mulkittle, trying to shove her away. "You are certainly a very improper young woman. Don't make yourself so ridiculous. I never saw you before."

"You kaint say that and tell the truth, man. I don't mind so much that board bill he ows me, gentlemen, but I'll be blamed ef any man shall tamper with the 'fections of that gal thar. A tender harted critter as ever lived, sher is, an' this man has pizened her life. She won't never be happy without him, en' I ax you all ef you are goin' to let a man come into the community an' destroy the happiness of a a likely gal? I wander know ef yer wont see this wrong righted? I ax ef you won't all jine in an' make him marry this heartbroken gal?"

Here the girl pressed Mr. Mulkittle's head against her excited self and wept over him. "Look out young woman," he exclaimed, freeing himself. "I never saw such an improper person. Gentlemen, I have a wife and three children at home, which, aside from the fact that I never saw the bold young woman before, much less made overtures to her, would place me beyond any possible matrimonial alliance."

"He's tellin' a lie," shouted old Gregg, "fur he told us he was a widower. Go fetch the license somebody, an' we'll make him marry, no matter if the Governer does want him."

"Gentlemen," implored the minister, "Do not act in a manner so rash."

"I'll git the license," exclaimed old Gregg, and he started off on a trot. He soon returned with the papers and a circuit rider. "Take your place thar," said the old man.

The girl seized Mr. Mulkittle and attempted to drag him.

"Great God! this won't do. Confound the telegraph wires; there must have been a terrible mistake. Give me one more chance, gentlemen. Send one more dispatch."

They agreed and he wrote:

"Governor, I am arrested here by mistake for a man named Nick Payton. Please say who I am. Mulkittle."

In a few minutes the reply came:

"First dispatch received wrong. Mulkittle is one of our best known preachers. Liberate him at once."

"That settles it," said the officer. "You ken go."

"Oh, ye Generation of vipers," said the minister, as he stood on the rear platform of a train which fortunately came along. "I have prayed for the world's redemption, but I shall ever make an exception of this infernal place. Oh ye generation of vipers!"

Open Windows.

A very large quantity of fresh air is spoiled and rendered foul by the act of breathing. A man spoils not less than a gallon every minute. In eight hours' breathing, a full-grown man spoils as much fresh air as seventeen three bushel sacks could hold! If he were shut up in a room seven feet broad, seven feet long, and seven feet high, the door and windows fitting so tightly that no air could pass through, he would die, poisoned by his own breath, in a very few hours; in twenty-four hours he would have spoiled all the air contained in the room and have converted it into poison! Reader, when you rise to morrow morning, just go out of doors for five minutes, and observe carefully the freshness of the air. Than air is in that state in which God keeps it for breathing. Then come back suddenly into your close room, and your senses will tell you how far the air in your room is from a wholesome condition.

An Episode of the Battle of Gettysburg.

Midway between the contending lines, says the New York Star, was a solitary tree that in peaceful times had given shade to the harvest hands at their nooning. Early in the morning some Confederate sharp-shooters had crawled out to this tree, and were able to reckon their game at every shot. So destructive, in fact, did their fire become, that the wildest imprecations were shouted at them by the Federals, and threats were made that if taken they would get no quarter. All at once there came a lull in the firing from that part of the line. A Confederate was seen to rise up from the base of the tree and to advance toward the Federals with his hand raised. Shots were fired at him, but there was curiosity at his approach, and the word was, "Wait till we see what he wants to do." Some thought he had a mind to desert, and encouraged him with shouts of "Come over, Johnny! we won't fire." But if the Confederate spoke, what he said could not be heard in the din of the cannonading and musetry. Forward still he came, and all eyes were strained to see what it could be that he meant to do. It might be merely a trick to deceive. Suddenly the Confederate dropped upon the grass. The next instant a thrill of enthusiasm passed through the Federals, murmurs of admiration were heard, and then a cheer as hearty as if given in a charge, burst forth from their throats; and the cheer repeated, increasing in volume, proved that unselfish actions are possible, and that there are noble hearts to appreciate and respond.

The Confederate sharpshooter, who had been doing his best to destroy his antagonist, had observed in front of him a wounded Federal, lying helplessly on the ground between the two lines, and begging in his agonizing thirst for a drink; and, at the almost certain risk of losing his own life, he had gone forward to give comfort to the distressed enemy. This it was that caused the Federal cheer, and for a few minutes stopped the work of death in that neighborhood. When the sharpshooter had performed his act of mercy he hastened back to the tree; and with the warning cry, "Down, Yanks, we're going to fire!" the little, unpremeditated truce was ended and was soon forgotten in the grand event that followed almost immediately after.

The next day—the Fourth of July—a heap of Confederates was found under that tree. Whether the hero of the day before was one of the ghastly dead, will probably never be known.

When he saw his mistake he went to the door, sadly opened it, and kicked himself clear down stairs.

A Boy's Battle for Life.

While Captain Johnson, of Clinch county, Georgia, was helping a party of twenty-five or thirty men haul for trout in a mill-pond the other day, his little son, Joseph, had a most thrilling experience. Master Joseph carried a bag, or corn sack, in which to deposit the fish when caught. When loaded with as many as he could carry, he took them out and made a deposit and returned for more. In making one of these trips while wading through water about three feet deep some distance from the fishermen, a monster alligator, said to be of unusual size, rose suddenly right at the boy and seized him by the thigh. A desperate struggle ensued—the boy battled for his life and the alligator for his prey. It so happened that the bag, which hung by the boy's side, was caught in the alligator's mouth with the thigh, and it proved a sort of shield—lessoning greatly the incisions made by the brute's teeth, and thus, perhaps, preventing a shock to his nervous system which might have made him succumb without the struggle which saved him his life. By an effort—one of those superhuman efforts which come to men when only facing death—the boy tore his bleeding flesh from the alligator's jaws. The monster grimly held to the sack a moment with the delusion, perhaps, that he still had his prey, affording the boy an opportunity to escape.

He had hardly extricated himself from the jaws of death before the fishermen, alarmed by the struggle, were at hand, and another battle ensued. Thirty men, armed with gigs, poles, pocket knives, and such other instruments of war as were near at hand, charged upon the monster. Being in three feet of water, the 'gator had considerable advantage, but those men had their blood up and were not to be outdone. They poled, and punched, and harpooned him until the brute was almost outdone, when one of the party made bold to seize him by the tail. This was a signal for a general assault. In less time than it would take to tell it a number of the more daring had him by the tail and legs. There were too many of them for the 'gator to slap around with his tail, a peculiar mode of 'gator warfare, and he had to give up the fight. A harpoon was plunged into his mouth and then it was safe to approach him with pocket knives. Soon his head was severed from his body, and the victorious party marched out of the pond with the monster's head on a pole.

It Will Come Back to You.

You have a father? You have a mother? You love them. But once in a while you grow impatient, and the weakness of your nature crops out; it wreaks itself on innocent father and mother, perhaps, and they suffer the punishment of a word called up by another's annoyance. The hard word is spoken. It may be regretted, forgiven and forgot, but it can never be recalled. Father and mother will sigh and forgive, but—

Some day it will come back to you.

Yesterday, maybe, a little one ran up to you smilingly, and with the innocent, heaven-born confidence of childhood, clapping its little hands, that would not harm a fly, in your face. The childish action delighted its author, but it annoyed you. You were busy and reproved the little one. Two pearly tears stood in her great blue eyes, her lips faltered, and she turned away from you. The era of childhood, with its happy fleeting hours, will erase the unkind word, but—

Some day it will come back to you.

A beggar stands at your door. The rain is dashing in torrents through the black atmosphere of the night, and the sharp vivid lightings only intensify by their violent contrast the awfulness of the darkness. The beggar's plea for shelter is punctuated by the blast that howls forth its anger, and you turn your brother off.

This will come back to you some day.

If you are impatient, testy, ill-humored, spiteful, malicious, cowardly and mean, your whole life will be a constant reckoning with evil actions whose enormity is only equalled by the increased wickedness of the future. A bad heart is a boomerang of passions, whose evil consequences always fall on the head of their luckless author. On the other hand, all good deeds work in a similar way with the rules that govern promises and seclusions, causes and effects; if either good or bad, the results will be in conformity with the natnre of the deed. Your bad deeds and good deeds are juries that sit upon the destiny of your life and decide the verdict of happiness or despair.

Some day they will come back to you.—Exchange.

How a Union Soldier Made a Fiddle.

It was at the "Brandy Station" Virginia in the winter of 1863—64, says the Westfield (Mass.) Times, that Geo. M. Colt, Company C, Second Vermont Volunteers, proposed to make the cheer-giving instrument; and with a hatchet, jack knife, file, and a piece of junk bottle as his only tool, he cut a piece of maple from a stump that grew on the bank of the Rappahannock River, set to work. The back and the sides of the fiddle are of one piece—a regular dugout. The top is of hemlock taken from a box which brought some Goodies from their friends in Varmount. The bow is of maple. The keys were made from the horns of some Confederat cattle that fell into our hands and were devoured by our carniverous soldiery so that the poor brutes contributed to our mental as well as physical welfare. The hairs were pulled from the tail of the Colonel's horse, who was fond of music and never raised a foot in resistance. It is said he even signified his witness to furnish enough of his hoofs for glue, but that was found elsewhere, and the instrument was completed, and in the hands of a modern Paganini who rose for the occasion, gave forth its soul-stirring strains. It conjured up stag dances serenaded headquarters, and was admired and cherished by the officers and men of the Green Mountain Boys. The rest must be left to imagination, as far as its army record is concerned. Suffice it is to say it was honorably discharged, and has been the hero of several occasions since the war, receiving the first premium at the Vermont State Fair. Rude as is its origin, its tone is remarkably sweet and especially in the rendering of Old John Brown and other airs that were offsprings of the war, which seem to revive in the memory of the exciting scenes of its early existance. Its maker and owner still lives, though he received wounds after the production of his instrument that have nearly disabled him for active duty.

The Miseries Of A Mean Man.

Sometimes I wonder what a man thinks about when he goes to bed, when he turns out the light and lies down, when the darkness closes in about him and he is alone, and compelled to be honest with himself. And not a bright thought, not a generous impulse, not a manly act, not a word of blessing, not a grateful look, comes to bless him again. Not a penny dropped into the outstretched palm of poverty, nor the palm of a loving word dropped into an aching heart; no sunbeam of encouragement cast upon a struggling life; the strong arm of fellowship reached out to help some fallen man to his feet—when none of these things come to him as the God bless you of the departed day, how he must hate himself. How he must try to roll away from himself and sleep on the other side of the bed. When the only victory, he can think of is some mean victory in which he has wronged a neighbor, No wonder he always sneers when he tries to smile. How fair and pure and good all the rest of the world must look to him, and how cheerless and dusty and dreary must his own path appear. Why, even one lone, insolated act of meanness is enough to scatter cracker crumbs in the bed of the average ordinary man, and what must be the feelings of a man whose whole life is given up to mean acts? When their is so much suffering and heartache and misery in the world, anyhow why should you add one pound of wikedness or sadness to the general burden? Don't be mean, my boy. Suffer injustice a thousand times rather than commit it once.—Burdette.

WHOOPING COUGH.—Dr. Garth, of Vienna, proposes a singular treatment for this distressing ailmeut, which will doubtless receive careful consideration from the medical profession. He states that by placing twenty drops of the oil of turpentine on a handkerchief, holding it before the face, and taking about forty deep inspirations, to be repeated thrice daily, marked relief, succeeded in cases of laryngeal catarrh by speedy cure, is the result. Being called in to attend an infant of fifteen months in the convulsive stage, he instructed the child's mother to hold a cloth moistened as already described, before it when awake, and to drop the oil upon its pillow when it slept. In this instance the remedy in its effect was most beneficial The frequency and severity of the attacks sensibly decreased in the course of twenty-four hours, and by proper support by the help of stimulants, improvement was rapid.

Patrick saw a bull pawing in a field, and thought what fun it would be to catch him by the horns and rub his nose in the dirt. The idea was so funny that he laid down and laughed to think of it. The more he thought of it, the funnier it seemed, and he determined to do it. Taurus quickly tossed him over the fence. Pat leisurely picked himself up, with the consolatory remark: "Will, it's a mighty foin thing I had my laugh foorst."

A FLORIDA CRACKER.

Riding Away From Blood-thirsty Indians on a Snow.

"Talkin' about Ingins, let me tell you about a narrerer escape I had once from the blame-taked things than the one I told you about afore. Hit happened along in 1837, when I was tollably young and spry and had just settled in this country. I had a right smart little clearin' of forty acres, had just married Sal Jennings—an' a likely young gal she was, too—an' we settled down to farmin'. We had a snug little log house of two rooms, a good barn and crib, a bunch of cattle that I had 'arned workin' out, lots of chickens an' a long, gaunt, ungainly sow that Sal's folkes had gin her when we got married.

"This here sow was the ornariest lookin' animile that ever I seed. She was nigh onto six feet long and not much fatter than a gallon of pump water. Her years had been cut off clost to her head an' her tail was jest a hard stump that you could hang a bucket on when you went to the spring arter water; but she had more solid hard sense than any sow I've ever seed afore or since. We called her Lot, bekase my woman, who was well larnt an' had nearly a hull Bible, 'lowed it was goin' to take a heap of salt to pack her away when we got outen meat an' decided to kill her. She was a sort of pet, too, fed around the house gineraly; allus came to the door arter her bucket of slops at night, an' no matter where she'd happen to be she'd come right up when we hollered or whistled for her. She seemed to understand every word I said to her an' was a heap of use to us, for she kept the house clar of insects. She'd come in the house just arter dinner and lay down on the floor with her mouth open, as if she was asleep like, and the ants, flies and fleas would all crowd in, an' then she'd shut her mouth up clost and that crowd of visitors was gone up. Then she'd turn around an' wink her eye at me, too! Yes, sir; actily wink her eye at me! I've seed her do hit many a time. I sot a heap of store by that there sow an' allus treated her kindly, an' the time I'm tellin' you about my narrer escape she saved my life.

"One night, arter we'd all gone to bed, my woman was taken powerful bad with some sort of misery in the stomach. I tried all the doctor truck I had in the house, but hit didn't do no good, so I concluded I'd best go to the store at the ferry an' git a dose o' puke for her. I knowed that if she could git a good chance of vomitin' she'd be all right, so I saddled my creetur an' put out for the store, which was nigh fourteen miles off. I got ther' about ten o' clock, got the medicine an' started for home fast as I could go. I tell you, young man, hit was sort of resky to leave yer wife all alone that way an' ride twenty-eight miles through the woods on a dark night, but in them days we often had to do hit. Well, I rode along jest as fast as I could, an' when I got in sight of the house I saw hit was all dark, but that didn't trouble me much, for I thought the light 'ud fire had gin out, an' my wife was too sick to put more on or mought be better an' gone to sleep. Jest as I got about half way to the barn my mule give a snort and jumped to one side, nigh throwin' me outer the saddle. I sburred her to make her go on, an'—vim! came a shot an' she fell right under me, shot through the head. Oh, Lordy, my heart went up in my swallow, for there was an awful yell an' my house blazed right up. I was all in a trimble an' didn't know which way to turn. I knowed my wife must be dead an' so I made for the swamp with the red devils a chasin' and yellin' at me.

"Jest as I got to the edge of the swamp I heard a grunt an' there riz up that ole sow, Lot. Then the good lord must have put the thought in me, an' I jumped on her back, scrooch in' mighty close along her backbone an' a-holdin' on to her shoulder-blades, with my feet sorter clinched under her belly. That ole sow seemed to know 'zactly what to do. She just buckled down to hit and into the swamp we went. The Ingins chased us about six miles, but Lot could outrun 'em and they had to give it up.

"I gathered up my wife's bones, what I could find of 'em, an' buried 'em right over thar where you see that little hill, and then I went to huntin' an' trappin' and killin' of Ingins fer a livin'. I built another little cabin—this one you're in now—an' gradually got another farm again, my own work' cookin' an' all. I expect to live an, die here, fer I'm gittin' too old to travel much now."

In all ages there are some great truths abroad in the air; they constitute the intellectual atmosphere of the century.

HUMOROUS.

HE COULD SYMPATHIZE WITH HIM.—Theophilus Wiggleton could crawl out through a smaller hole than any other man in town; I mean by that, that he could shirk responsibility; and especially creep away from paying his honest debts. In this latter respect he was both slippery and brazen. Here is a case directly to the point.

Homer Harvey was known as one of the best-natured and most accommodating tailors. He had entered the name of Theophilus Wiggleton in his books believing him to be what he would appear to be,—worth money; and under that impression he had made for him two suits of clothes of the finest cloth; after that he had furnished him with a third suit, for fear of losing what was already due should he irritate the man by refusing him. And now Harvey wanted his money. He wanted it very much. The bill amounted to little more than $100, and the debtor had many times promised that in a very few days the money should be forthcoming.

One bright summer's day the tailor met this delinquent customer, and caught him by the sleeve.

"Wiggleton, my dear man, can you let me have the amount of my bill against you this morning?"

"O!—ho! ho! It's you, my dear old fellow! How are you?" And he gave him a handgrasp that was warm and hearty. "Say, Harvey, are you pressed? Do you owe anybody that ought to be paid at once?"

From the look of Wiggleton's eye, as he gave a sidelong glance from it, the tailor believed, if he should own to being in debt to others, that the fellow would retort that it was very unprincipled of him to press him for money. So he answered in the negative.

"No," he said, "I don't owe; and I don't mean to if I can help it."

"Aha!—good, good!" cried Theophilus gladly. "If you are owing nobody, of course you cannot need money. At all events, you don't need it one-half so much as I do; for I am in debt. But don't worry, Harvey. It shall come some time."

The tailor turned away in disgust, and in partial despair.

The next time he asked the man for money he wouldn't give him such a hole through which to crawl away.

The next time came. Harvey met his man at the hotel bar.

"Ah, Wiggleton! You are just the man I have been wishing to see. Can you make it convenient to pay that little bill to-day?"

"My dear Harvey, are you really in need?"

"I am; desperately so!"

"Mercy! You don't owe anybody else money, do you!"

"I do; I owe a large sum!"

"Aha! Good, good!" grasping the tailor's hand. "Now, my dear fellow, you can sympathize with me. We're both in the same box. But don't let us fret. We'll keep our shoulder to the wheel—keep our courage up, my boy, and we'll come out all right. Never fear. Have a drink!"

Mark Lemon once said it is with narrow-souled people as with narrow-necked bottles—the less they have in them the more noise they make in getting it out.

A Western editor, in response to a subscriber, who grumbles that his morning paper was intolerably damp, says "that is because there is so much due on it."

"I am afraid, dear wife, that while I am gone, absence will conquer love." "Oh, never fear, dear husband—the longer you stay away the better I shall like you."

A Lowell man has a wife of such a changeable disposition that he says he loves her some days enough to eat her up, and the next day he wishes to gracious he had.

A man asked for admission to a show for half-price, as he had but one eye. But the manager told him it would take him twice as long to see the show as it would anybody else, and charged him double.

"There is nothing like settling down," said the retired merchant, confidentially, to his neighbor. "When I gave up business I settled down and found that I had quite a comfortable fortune. If I had settled up I should not have had a cent."

CARLISLE'S COMMITTEES.

The House met at noon on the 24th of December and Speaker Carlisle announced his committees, which are in the main satisfactory, although not every member nor even every interest is satisfied, and that result could not possibly be reached by any speaker, no matter who he would be.

Mr. Carlisle has not allowed himself to be influenced against the great leaders in the Democratic party whom the people have learned to respect and trust, and especially has he remembered our Pennsylvania statesmen, Curtin and Randall, who stand high in the affections of the people by giving them chairmanships on the most important committees. The speaker does himself great honor herein.

We give below some of the more important committees:

Ways and Means—Messrs. Morrison Illinois; Mills, Texas; Blount, Georgia; Blackburn, Kentucky; Hewitt, New York; Herbert, Alabama; Hurd, Ohio; Jones, Arkansas; Kelly, Pennsylvania; Kasson, Iowa; McKinley, Ohio; Hiscock, New York; Russell, Mussachusetts.

Appropriations— Messrs. Randall, Pennsylvania; Forney, Alabama; Elis, Lousiana; Holman, Indiana; Hancock, Texas; Townshend, Illinois; Hutchins, New York; Follett, Ohio; Burns, Missouri; Keifer, Ohio; Cannon, Illinois; Ryan, Kansas; Calkins Indiana; Horr, Michigan; Washburn, Minnesota.

Foreign Affairs—Messrs. Curtin, Pennsylvania; Belmont, New York; Deuster, Wisconsin; Clements, Georgia; W. R. Cox, N. C.; G. D. Wise, Va.; Stewart, Texas; Lamb, Indiana; Rice, Mass.; Wait, Conn.; Ketcham, N. Y.; Phelps, N. J.; Hitt, Ill.

Banking and Currency— Messrs. Buckner, Missouri; Ermentrout, Pennsylvania; Potter, New York; Hunt, Louisiana; Mills, Texas; Candler, Georgia; Wilkins, Ohio; Yaple, Mich; Dingley, Maine; Brumm, Pennsylvania; Adams, Illinois; Henderson, Ia.; Hooper, Virginia.

PRESIDENTIAL PLANS.

Logan Pushing His Campaign—Opposition to Arthur—Gossip About the Candidates.

WASHINGTON, December 27.

General Logan is forcing the fight with Arthur for the nomination. Not only is he in dead earnest himself, but, to a an extent true of no one else, except Blaine, perhaps he has fighting friends. The Black Warrior regards Illinois secure for him, and he is proceeding on the ground that no man has any right in the canvass which the convention will be bound to respect who does not have the solid support of his own State and who cannot show that it will be his at the election. This rule sets Arthur aside. Logan is calling witnesses to show that Arthur can neither get the delegates from nor carry New York. The proposition that whereas, New York must be carried to elect, and that as Arthur cannot do it he is out of the race, is a piece of logic which Logan employs with force peculiar to him. It is the General's stronghold. He relies on it to kill Arthur, even if it does not nominate himself. He takes pride in declaring that he has the courage of his convictions, which is something tremendous. Arthur has been made to understand the case and requested to say what he is going to do about it.

Logon and his supporters aver with the greatest confidence and cite in support of what they say overwhelming proof, as they declare, that Arthur would be beaten in New York. It is alleged that Arthur has lately been coufronted with the proposition and the proof and respectfully requested either to controvert it or take himself out of the field. The Illinois statesman is for no nonsence. He never is. It is of this he gives notice on all occasions when there is something on hand to fight for.

A decided majority of the Republican Senators will act together as anti-Arthur men on questions bearing on the Presidential nomination. Though differing in their preferences, they will act in harmony in opposition to Arthur. Senator Sherman has taken the lead in this. The time has come when General Arthur has occasion to know on whom he can rely. The Mahone alliance is likely to prove a serious detriment. A number of Senators make it the ground opposition to Arthur. Senator Sherman finds it a convenient reason. Mahone is looked upon as an Arthur bower and will be treated accordingly.

Representations from whatever quarter of changed relations between Grant, Blaine and Conkling, or any of them, are groundless. Since the report of an alliance between them to control the Prosidential nomination was sent forth it has been denied by all of them. Grant and Conkling, are out of politics and and Blaine is keeping close watch on the White House, within sight of which he has located himself, the better to observe, it is said, Arthur's movements and prosecute his literary pursuits.

Miscellaneous.

How often we hear middle-aged people say regarding that reliable old cough remedy, N. H. Downs' Elixer: "Why, my mother gave it to me when I was a child, and I use it in my family; it always cures." Who can name another medicine with such a record as this? Dr. Baxter's Mandrake Bitters are another good medicine; and Arnica and Oil Liniment is just what it is recommended to be. For sale by H. H. Tomlinson, Millheim, Pa.

A Lesson and Incentive.

Twenty five years ago a young man named Jerome A. Fillmore, of Pennsylvania, entered the service of the Delaware Lackawanna and Western railroad as a brakeman on a coal train ot $25 a month salary. Last week Mr. Fillmore arrived in Chicago with his family in a special car as general superintendent of the Central and Southern Pacific railroad system, and everywhere recognized and admitted as one of the finest railway managers in the United States. His salary is $15,000 a year, and it would, perhaps, be doubled before he would be allowed to leave the company's service. There is a lesson, an incentive to the youth of the country in Mr. Fillmore's career.

Mrs. Nutt's Friends in an Hour of Need.

UNIONTOWN, DEC. 25.—If Mrs. Nutt does not fare well during her stay in Pittsburg at the coming trial of her son, it will not be because she has no good offers from the people of that city. Letters come pouring in containing expressions that indicate a remarkable state of public sympathy for her. Many private citizens lying in the city have written, inviting her to make her home with them during the trial free of cost. A gentleman urges her to come and bring her mother and near relatives and stay with his family, and he will furnish them with carriages to and from the Court House daily. One hotel has tendered her its accommodation free. One of the Fisher brothers, of Pittsburg, was in Uniontown Saturday last, and while here offered the hospitality of his home to Mrs. Nutt at the trial, and also left $100 to aid in defraying the expenses.

Speech-Making.

John Bright makes notes and headings of his speeches, and with great care writes down and commits to memory all the important passages. Gladstone merely jots down facts and figures, and for expression trusts entirely to the moment. The late Lord Derby, the "Rupert of Debate," wrote down every word and committed his speeches to memory. I one of his letters he says that all his principal speeches cost him two sleepless nights—one in thinking what he would say and the other in lamenting that he might have said it better. Thiers was equally precise. O'Connell and Gambetta spoke always on the inspiration of the moment.

Christmas at the White House.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26.—Christmas here was universally quiet, and on account of the disagreeable weather but few persons were on the streets. All of the churches had an early service—several of them at midnight—but all were very slimly attended.

The President returned from New York and attended divine service at St. John's Episcopal church at 11 o'clock He was accompanied by his daughter Nellie and his son Allan. Returning to the White House he dined with the members of his family and spent the remander of the day quietly.

Be Merciful to the Dumb Beasts.

Horses should be warmly covered, when hitched in the open air. Don't hitch them on cold corners. Don't leave them stand uncovered in the cold air a full half day.

The cows, calves, pigs and all domestic aeimals should be warmly housed. It saves feed. Cattle in a warm barn. do not need nearly as much feed as those exposed to the inclemency of the season. It pays to be merciful. It is all right that ladies sho uld take good care of their pet dogs; but, at the same time, cast a thought about the comfort of animals of more value, and susceptible of an equal amount of physical suffering.

The fearful Plunge of a Passenger Train Into Blue River.

NEW ALBANY, Ind., Dec. 28.—This disastrous accident occured on the Louisville, New Albany and Chicago Railroad, at four minutes after five, Monday morning, to the South-Bound Chicago train at Blue River Bridge, one and a-half miles South of Salem. The train was running at the rate of forty miles an hour. The bridge was regarded as one of the most substantial on the road, but for thirty hours previous tremendous rains had fallen, and the flood in Blue River had undermined the bridge and greatly weakened it.

AN ACCIDENT TO GENERAL GRANT.

Very Badly Hurt by a Fall on the Ice on Christmas Eve.

NEW YORK, December 27.

General U. S. Grant lies in his house, at 3 East Sixty-sixth street, suffering from a severe fall. On Monday evening last, between 10 and 11 o'clock. he sent for his coupe, intending to make a call in Madison avenue. It was a cold nigt and the sidewalks were covered with a coating of ice. It has always been the custom of General Grant to make presents of money to his servants on Christmas and this seemed to him to be a good time to tip the coachman. He stepped to the box, handed the man a roll of bills and then turned to enter the cab. His feet slipped from under him and he fell with very great violence on his left side. Before the servants could reach him he ar ose, but his left foot gave way under him and he sank on the sidewalk in a fainting condition. Harrison Terrell, his colored valet and coachman, carried him up the front stoop slowly and carefully, as he seemed to be suffering great agony. They placed him in the elevator and carried him to his room, where he was put to bed.

Reduction in Local Passenger Rates, P. & E. R. R. Division.

The Passenger Department of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company announces that with, view of better accommodating the traveling public, a reduction in the passenger rates will go into effect on Jan. 1st, 1884, between stations on the Philadelphia and Erie Railroad Division, embracing the "main line," between Sunbury and Erie; "Lewisburg and Tyrone Railroad," between Moutandon and Spring Mills; "Sunbury, Hazleton and Wilkesbarre Railroad," between Sunbury and Tomhicken; "North and West Branch Railway," between Catawissa and Wilkesbarre; and "Ridgeway and Clearfield Railroad," between Brockwayvile and Ridgeway.

—Mr. Wm. Kerstetter bought the house of Mr. A. R. Alexander, on the Dutweiler farm, at ElkCreek. occupied by Josiah Long, at present.

—For fine Monuments and Headstones the Millheim Marble Works is the leading and best place in the county. tf

—Probably you need new Blank Books to begin new accounts with the new year. The new Journal Store is just the place to get them.

—Mr. Jacob Keen bought the homestead of Mr. Wm. Kersteter on Penn Street at private sale for the sum of $800.

—Our County Commissioners will offer a large lot of land at public sale, at the Court House, Bellefonte, Jan. 29. 1884.

—The EVERLASTING WASHING MACHINE for sale by Mr. H. K. Luse of this place, is the best machine of the kind. It will pay you to procure one.

—Geo. W. Brown, executor will sell a valuable small home above Madisonburg at public sale, Jan. 23. 1884. See bills.

—Dr. H. H. Warner, proprietor of the great observatory at Rochester, N. Y., has our thanks for tickets of admission to his observatory during the year 1884.

—Quite a number of new advertisements appear in this number of the JOURNAL. Read them friends, you may strike something exactly in your line of wants.

—Shakespeare said, "Throw physic to the dogs;" but then Shakespeare probably never had the rheumatism, and knew nothing about the wonderful virtues of Smith's German Olio.

—We acknowledge with thanks the receipt of tickets to the County Teacher's Institute, and regret that we could not avail ourselves of their benefits.

—The new Journal Store on Penn Street is Headquarters for Books, Stationery, Fancy goods and Notions. Don't forget it and give us a call.

—Mr. J. Willis Musser has bought out the stage route from Woodward to Millheim, but also goes to Coburn every morning. He carries express and other goods from all points along the line at very moderate charges, and continues the calf and poultry business. tf

—The latest railroad news that has gained currency, and it really seems to be based on good grounds is to the effect that the board of directors of the Penna. R. R. Co. have decided to extend our road to Lemont, to intersect with the Bellefonte and Lemont road. This is the work of Gov. Curtin.

—Do not fail to read the advertisement of the Millheim Marble Works. They are fully prepared to serve their old friends and customers as well as the public generally with the best work at the lowest prices.

TAKE NOTICE.—Mr. H. K. Luse hereby respectfully informs the public that he has a large lot of seed potatoes known as the "White Elephant Potato' for sale at his residence at Millheim. We are in possession of a basket full of these potatoes and can give them a warm recommendation as the best yielding potatoe in the market. If you are in need of any seed potatoes do not fail to call on him. tf —Rebersburg charge (Reformed) Rev. Newton J. Miller, Pastor, will hold Zwingli Memorial services on the second Sunday in January—at Grace Church, east end of Brush Valley. Saturday Jan. 12th, 2 o'clock, P. M.

Greenburr, Saturday 7 P. M., Sunday Jan. 13th, Tylersville, 10, A. M., Madisonburg 2 P. M., Rebersburg 7 P. M.

Rev. Z. Yearick, of Aaronsburg and Prof. D. M. Wolf will assist Pastor Miller in these services

The Pastor.

—Prof. Wm. T. Meyer, whose field of labor is at Shamokin at present, and where he has a large class of pupils in instrumental music, came home to pay a week's visit to his folks at Aaronsburg He illuminated the JOURNAL office by his friendly smile and a bright dollar for the paper. Call again, William.

—The festival held in the Methodist church over the New year was quite well patronized by our people and was a full success generally. Those who had the matter in charge did their utmost to serve and oblige the many visitors and in this they fully succeeded. Everything was in best styie and every one present seemed highly pleased. The proceeds were good and fully renumerated our friends for their labor, with a fair margin over. We congratulate our friends on their success.

—The 400th birthday of Ulric Zwingli, the Swiss reformer and one of the founders of the Reformed church, will be celebrated in the Aaronsburg Reformed charge next Saturday and Sunday, in the following order:—at St. Paul's on Saturday evening, at Aaronsburg on Sunday, 10 A. M., at Millheim, 2.30 P. M. and at Salem's in the evening.

Similar services will be held in the Rebersburg charge, on the 12th and 13th inst., as follows:—On Saturday, at the chapel, East End, Brush Valley, at 2 P. M. and at Kahl's church, Sugar Valley, in the evening; on Sunday, at Tylersville, 10 A. M., at Madisonburg, 2.30 P. M., and at Rebersburg in the evening.

Prof. D. M. Wolf, Rev's N. J. Miller, S. M. Roeder and Z. A. Yearick will be present at one or more of these appointments and deliver short addresses suitable to the occasion.

—A number of marriages appear in this number of the JOURNAL and some of the parties are our near neighbors and friends.

Mr. John W. Lose we have also known these many years. He is one of the most useful young men in this town and community and we are glad that he has concluded to settle here. Mrs. Lose is also well known here, having taught school in Millheim with much acceptance for several years. The happy couple have our best wishes and warmest congratulations, as well as our best thanks for the printer's share of the delicious wedding cake.

Mr. Robert H. Kreamer also comes in the list of newly-married couples. Robert is a very active, sociable, and agreeable young man. His chosen one Miss McMullin, we have no acquaintance with. Luck to you Bob.

Last but not least, is Mr. Irvin T. Williams of Clinton county and Miss Maggie Ulrich, of this place. Mr. Williams has been around here for several years, off and on, and he sustained a most excellent character for industry and sobriety, while Miss Maggie has always been one of the excellent of the earth. They haye our warmest congratulations.

For the Journal.

A GOOD TIME AT THE EVANGELICAL PARSONAGE OF MILLHEIM.—Dear Editors: The happy life is made up of two elements, the religeous and the social. These two elements constitute the good of the parsonage. On Christmas eve I was expecting my youngest son home from the city whom I had not seen for several years, and on my way to church, I intercepted the last coach from the railroad station, to receive my boy, but he was not a passenger and I was sadly disappointed—fo I love my boys dearly.

I went to church and preached to my congregation from the sublimest of all themes, the "nativity of Christ," and though I tried to make my discourse as interesting as possible, yet my hearers seemed as if "all the world were to be taxed again," so that I did not accomplish what I expected, closed the service, went home, and sat down in my parlor all alone, the family had gone out, and somewhat like Edgar Allen Poe in his "Raven,"—

Once upon a midnight dreary
While I pondered weak and weary,
Over many a quaint and curious volume
Of forgotten lore—
Suddenly there came a tapping
As if some one gently rapping
At my chamber door;
It was in bleack December—&c.

The tapping at my door was not by the raven, though they furnished the prophet of the lord with food in his solitude. The rap at my door was by a diffrent species of ravins, but on a, similar errand, and led by the Rev. C. F. Gephart. It was he who did the rapping at my door, and following him was a flock of about 75 smiling men and women, and each one having a gift for the servant of the lord—and his beast, for there was a bag of oats for "Dollie" among the lot of good things. When I looked upon the heap on the table I saw at once what the burden was that weighed my people down in church and freely forgave them for their seeming indifference. After the singing of a few Christmas Anthems, and a free flow of social good feeling. I tried to make a little speech and thanked my many friends. We sang the "Praise God from whom all blessings flow," pronounced the apostolic benediction and dismissed them. In conclusion, once more I thank you one and all for that agreeable surprise. I shall cherish it as one of the pleasantest ot my life, and may God in return richly bless you and yours, is the sincere prayer of your friend and pastor,

Benjamin Hengst.

ULRIC ZWINGLI.—Scarcely have the festivities of the Luther Memorial services been superceded by the commemoration of the nativity of our Saviour, the greatest of earth's reformers, before Protestantism again summons a portion of Christendom to halt in the pursuit of secular affairs in order to celebrate on the incoming New Year the four hundrethd anniversay of the birth of Zwingli, one of the foremost lights of the 16th century. One might almost suppose that the birth of Zwingli on the first day of January 1484 foreshadowed that when the then present generation had passed away and he attained to the vigor of manhood a new era in ecclesiastical affairs would by his aid mark the rise of Protestantism in Switzerland and in the many countries whither the Swiss Reformation extended its influence.

The primary luminaries of the Reformation were Luther, Zwingli, Calvin and Melancthon. It is no disparagement to the memory of any one of these bright lights of the ecclesiastical firmament to say that this or that one ranked above the others in special spheres of christian activity; but it is a gross injustice to the memory of Zwingli, Calvin or Melancthon to regard them as satellites revolving around and reflecting the illumination caught from Luther. They alike devoted their lives to the reformation of the church. They all contributed to its success. They differed in their powers of mind, in the temperament of their phpsical constitutions, were reared under different circumstances, were educated at different schools and their theaters of action were different.

Each displayed characteristic qualities. Melancthon stands out as the polished scholar who mediated between the coarseness of Luther's manner and the refined humanist of that age. Calvin has generally been acknowledged as the greatest theologian. Luther's prominence rests on his boldness, energy and the immense amount of work he performed. Zwingli comes into the forefront as the champion of man's exaltation to Godlikeness and as the hero of Capel. As a student of the Bible and preacher of positive truth Zwingli was unrivaled.

The character of Zwingli was not tarnished by the besetting sins of his countrymen and profession. Against these he took a firm stand during youth as well as in the ripe years of manhood. By indomitable perseverance he succeeded in supplanting to a great extent the immorality and impiety of his age.

With good reason the Reformed church proposes to celebrate the 400th anniversary of this great reformer's birth. The reformed branch of protestantism is divided into many families and distributed over many countries. The coming anniversary will serve to bring into closer union the many denominations of protestanism who look to Zwingli not as their sole founder but as to an illustrious one of their many founders who protested against Roman error and laid the foundation of the reformation. * * *

—THE REBERSBURG MUSICAL CONVENTION, held in the Lutheren church under the direction of Prof. Sechrist from Hagerstown, Md., was a perfect success. A great many singers were present and the music throughout was very good and well rendered. The patronage was exceedingly liberal, and the proceeds realized amounted to about two hundred dollars. Both concerts were well attended, and all present seemed highly gratified with the exercises. Prof. Sechrist is undoubtedly one of the finest teachers of vocal music that ever visited this section of the country. His son, Harry and daughter Ella, can also be classed among the best musicians of the day. They have certainly endeared themselves to the good people of Rebersburg, both by their professional skill as well as by their excellent social qualities.

One who was present.

—Hon. W. K. Alexander, accompanied by his sister, Miss Maggie, was off on a trip to Philadelphia, last week.

Echoes from Coburn.

Wheat is worth $1.04.

Protracted meeting closed on Sunday evening.

The wet weather is killing the ice crop which was about ripe.

Our merchants did a thriving business during the holidays.

Miss Lizzie Catherman who had been here visiting a few weeks went to Lewisburg on Monday Shall bet glad to have her call again.

Mr. John Rote has moved into his new house and says he likes it tip top at Coburn.

Our new school is a perfect success. Mr. E. H. Bressler, the teacher, reports 36 on the roll, 29 average attendance. He is a good teacher and a clever fellow.

In behalf of the select oyster supper on Saturday evening we render thanks to Mr. Ard and would be glad to have more such social gatherings during the long winter evenings.

Mr. C. Dinges had quite a distinguished guest last week, in the person of Wm. K. Hawkins, Esq. of Philadelphia, Secretary to the chief engineer of the Pa. R. R. I did not have the pleasure of meeting him but he is highly spoken of. He made an inspection of the railroad from here to Lewisburg.

Scribe.

—Mr. H. B. Herring, son of S. J. Herring, Esq., of Penn Hall, who had been in Dakota, since August, returned, to spend the winter at the parental home. He likes the West and speaks of going back to the distant land by next spring.

—In looking over our advertising columns you will find the large and interesting announcement of Dinges, Vonada & Co., at Coburn. That firm is bound to make things boom and as far as we can ascertain they are succesful in their enterprises. Call at their store and get the benefit of the bargains they are offering.

—THE HOLIDAYS, the happy, festive season of the year has again come and gone, with its meetings and greetings, its family reunions—its pleasures and joys There was no public demonstration in Millheim this year, no church or other festival, except New Year's Day by our Methodist friends noticed elswhere. The Sunday School scholars were remembered with substantial gifts, and many presents were made in a quiet way. On the whole the holidays passed of verry pleasantly, and we trust profitably.

—The word "Olio" implies a mixture. Smith's German Olio is a mixture of herbs, roots and seeds, skillfully compounded, and is a specific for rheumatism and similar diseases.

TO ALL WHOM IT MAY CONCERN.—We call the attention of our readers who may be in want of engineer's, architectural and carpenter work, to the fact that Mr. John Kerstetter, Jr., of Millheim is master of these trades and is in possession of the best recommendations to this effect. Give him a trial by all means. 1-4t

—The official statement of the business on all the lines of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company east of Pittsburg and Erie for November, 1883, as compared with the same month in 1882 shows an increase in the gross earnings of $99,654: a decrease in expenses of $155,161; an increase in net earnings of $254,815. And yet that great corporation can't finish the Lewisburg & Tyrone branch without exorting $25,000 frem the hard earnings of the people of Centre county, for—what? The damage done by the Company's own negligence. That sounds bad for the great corporation.—Lewisburg Chronicle.

—The art studio of Buck Brother's on Main street is fixed up and arranged on the best style and persons wishing to procure photographs at their establishment will find it a fine place of business and the proprietors of it obliging and pleasant gentlemen. Give them a call.

—Mr. C. A. Sturgis, the gentlemanly jeweler of Lewisburg, presented the M. E. Church of this place with a fine silver Communion service valued at $50. Bravo, Charley, such deeds deserve the heartiest thanks of the community.

DID YOU

ever read a patent medicine advertisement? Yes, say you; one can't pick up a paper now-a-days that is not one-half medicine advertisements. No doubt of it. Column after column of most wonderful cures performed on Jones and Brown away off somewhere.

But did you ever read of a manufacturer of a medicine who had the courage, or had sufficient confidence in his medicine himself to say. "if you are not cured or benefited go to where you bought the medicine and demand your money and it will be given to you."

You didn't? Well, neither did we; but there are such remedies nevertheless.

Are you troubled with torpid or diseased Liver, inactive Kidneys, Billiousness, Constipation, &c., &c., use McDonald's improved Liver Pills—money refunded to dissatisfied purchasers.

Do you inherit Scrofula or Erisipilas? If so, try McDonald's Great Blood Purifier—money refunded to dissatisfied purchasers.

Do you want to feel secure from those frightful and oftimes fatal visitors, Croup and Whooping Cough, as well as having in the family the one incomparable cough medicine for all colds and lung troubles. Then buy Dr. Kessler's famous cough medicine—money refunded to all dissatisfied purchasers.

Do you want a whole Drug store in a little glass bottle: then secure at once, Curtis' Carmelite Cordial: the greatest medicine ever devised for Cholera, Dysentery, Diarrhoea, Cramps, &c. Neyer was equaled as a general family pain curer—money refunded to dissatisfied purchasers.

Have you reason, from symptoms exhibited, to suspect that any of your children are troubled with worms? If so, let me say to you, for smallness of dose, easiness to take, efficatiousness, as a worm destroyer, McDonald's Celebrated Worm Powders have no equal on earth—money refunded to dissatisfied purchasers.

Have you a valuable horse for which you want a medicine to enrich the blood, improve the appetite and digestion, make his coat glossy, eye bright and step elastic? Give him McDonald's Tonic and Blood purifying Horse and Cattle Powder. We don't think it it possible to produce a better medicine for stock.

Don't use it unless your animal is sick and needs a medicine. If you want to use a stock powder for fun, buy somedody else's—Money refunded to dissatisfied purchasers.

Dr. Barber at his Drug store, in Middleburgh, Snyder county, Penna., keeps these remedies for sale and is authorized to refund the money to any dissatisfied buyer. Now ask yourself the question, can I afford to place a humbug before you under the above conditions, or would a druggist of J Eisenhuth's standing and reputation be likely to have these medicines in his store, much less recommend them, if they were not medicines of merit.

A Warning to Parents.

Few people seem to properly estimate the great wrong of frightening children. Nearly every household has its ugly old man or its great old bear. This terrible old man and this great old bear are powerful factors in nursery discipline. 'Come along here now,' a mother or nurse will say to a child, 'and let me put you to bed.' 'I don't want to go now,' the child replies. 'You'd better come on here now, or I'll tell that ugly old man to come and take you away. There he comes now.' This has the intended effect, and the child, trembling in fear, submits at once and goes to bed, probably to see in imagination all kinds of horrible faces.

The sad death of a little girl, which occurred recently, shows what a strong impression these boggers make on the minds of children. The little girl was a beautiful child, and every one at the fashionable boarding house where her parents spent the summer months loved her with that purity of affection which a child so strongly inspires. She would stand at the gate and clap her little hands in glee when her father came to dinner, and when he would take her on his shoulder, she would shout and call to every one to look how high she was. One day a large shaggy dog came into the yard, and when she ran to him and held a flower to his nose, he growled and turned away. She was terribly frightened, and the black nurse, who stood near, was not slow in making a mental note of the impression the dog had made. Several nights afterward, when bed-time came, the child was unusually wakeful.

"Yer'd better come heah an' git in dis bed," the nurse commanded.

"I don't want to."

"All right, den. I'se gwine out an' call dat ole dog what growled at yer. When he comes an' fin's yer outen de bed, he'll bite yer head off."

The little child grew deathly pale,

"Nuthin' would suit dat dog better den ter git a chance at yer. 'Tother night he cotch a little girl across de road an' eat her all up."

The child screamed.

"Come on here den, an' I won't let him ketch yer."

The poor little thing obeyed. Her father and mother were at an entertainment and there was no appeal in the negro woman's decision. When morning came the little girl did not awake with her glad "good mornin' papa an' mamma." She had tossed all night and a hot fever had settled upon her. She grew rapidly worse, and the next day the physician declared that there was no hope for her. She became delirous, and struggling would exclaim :

"Dog shan't have mamma's little girl ?"

It was a sorrowing circle that surrounded her death-bed. The parents were plunged into a grief which none but the hearts of fathers and mothers can feel.

Her last moments were a series of struggles. How hard the beautiful can die. She wildly threw up her little hands and shrieked :

"Go away, dog !"

A gentle hand wiped the death froth from her lips.

Again she struggled and shrieked : "Dog shan't have—" but she died ere the sentence was finished.

HOUSEHOLD NOTES.

A beautiful tidy for the back of a large chair is made of a square piece of cloth about ten inches each way ; on this is sewed patchwork of plush and velvet in the form of a wide-spread fan. The corners of the block are of black velvet, and on the top, drooping over the fan, is a spray from a moss-rose bush, in ribbon embroidery. The edge is finished with lace. This design is pretty for a block in a quilt or sofa-pillow.

A pretty way to fix a palm-leaf fan is to paint it. Mix some ultra-marine or Prussian blue with a little silver-white paint, and make it quite thin with boiled linseed oil. Paint the fan on both sides, handle and all, with it. If you choose to decorate it, paint a poppy or some buds and stems on it ; tie a blue ribbon around the handle and hang it in a convenient place. If you prefer to make it pink, use crimson or madder lake and white in the same way.

Pretty blocks for a crazy quilt have different shapes and styles of fans on them. These blocks, and in fact all those used in the quilt, gain in effect by having a framework of black velvet ribbon. This can be brightened as much as you please by the use of embroidery silks. Brocade silk can be made more effective, if of one color, by having the figures outlined with nice silks.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth ? If so, send at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhœa, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. MRS WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle.

Relief for Burns—A quick cure is to apply a layer of common salt and saturate it with laudanum. Hold it in place an hour or so by a simple bandage. The smarting sensation will disappear rapidly.

One-Half a Million of Dollars for Postage.

George Stinson & Co., the celebrated Art Publishers, of Portland, Maine, undoubtedly pay more money for postage stamps than any other firm in the world; for the last five years their postage bill has averaged over two thousand dollars per week, making a grand aggregate of over five hundred and twenty thousand dollars ; this is about the three-hundredth part of all postage of every description collected by the United States government during that time and in this connection it must be borne in mind that the country now has over fifty million souls, and fifty thousand post-offices. But the enormous sum paid for postage represents only the cost of sending the light packages, letters and circulars, for large, heavy packages are sent by express and freight. Messrs. Stinson & Co., publish every description of pictures of the better class, and their trade extends over the entire world. As an illustration of the fact that their trade reaches the furthermost parts of the earth, the following may be interesting : A short time since an order for an assortment of over three thousand large and expensive pictures was received from Tasmania, away down under the South Pole. Not many years ago Tasmania was a penal colony of England, and its population was entirely of convicts and their keepers. Since the removal of the convicts, it has become a thrifty colony ; this place is so remote, that three months are required for an answer to a letter. Tons of pictures are sent to South America by Messrs. Stinson & Co., and West Africa sends to Portland for works of art ; they have trade in every quarter of the globe where civilization has gained a foothold. Commencing at the bottom, they have worked their way up to the top, step by step, and thereby, added to the greatest push and enterprises, they have that solid practical experience that is always necessary to the best results, in all things. They carry in stock millions of pictures, and are at a moments notice ready to fill a five cent order, or one for thousands of dollars; they employ some five hundred artists, clerks, and workmen ; their machinery and appointments are on a magnificent scale, and a trade of ten thousand dollars a day, on an average, is required to keep them moving in full blast. Their assortment of steel plates is especially fine, and ranks very high in artistic merit ; many thousand of dollars are often spent on a single plate. They appreciate the value of printer's ink, and know how to use it to the best advantage ; therefore they advertise largely and liberally in the newspaper —newspaper advertising was an important factor in laying the sound foundations of their great success, and without it, they state that it would have been utterly impossible for them to have reached their present position.

Stinson & Co., are a striking illustration of what can be accomplished by energy, industry, and good judgment. There is "room at the top"—all honor to those who fight their way up. This firm believes in standard goods and low prices, and on that principle their business is conducted. American homes should be made beautiful by refined and meritorous works of art : no one has any excuse for not adding to their homes the charms of pictures, for fine works of high art are within the reach of all.

DR. JOHN BULL'S

Smith's Tonic Syrup

FEVER and AGUE

Or CHILLS and FEVER,

AND ALL MALARIAL DISEASES.

The proprietor of this celebrated medicine justly claims for it a superiority over all remedies ever offered to the public for the SAFE, CERTAIN, SPEEDY and PERMANENT cure of Ague and Fever, or Chills and Fever, whether of short or long standing. He refers to the entire Western and Southern country to bear him testimony to the truth of the assertion that in no case whatever will it fail to cure if the directions are strictly followed and carried out. In a great many cases a single dose has been sufficient for a cure, and whole families have been cured by a single bottle, with a perfect restoration of the general health. It is, however, prudent, and in every case more certain to cure, if its use is continued in smaller doses for a week or two after the disease has been checked, more especially in difficult and long-standing cases. Usually this medicine will not require any aid to keep the bowels in good order. Should the patient, however, require a cathartic medicine, after having taken three or four doses of the Tonic, a single dose of BULL'S VEGETABLE FAMILY PILLS will be sufficient.

BULL'S SARSAPARILLA is the old and reliable remedy for impurities of the blood and Scrofulous affections—the King of Blood Purifiers.

DR. JOHN BULL'S VEGETABLE WORM DESTROYER is prepared in the form of candy drops, attractive to the sight and pleasant to the taste.
